My function "add_to_list" recursively calls itself until the linked list is either empty or full. I have created a function for a specific input (4 in this case). When I run the code, however, I get the error: NameError: global name 'a' is not defined I can't see what I'm doing wrong. I'm sure its something really obvious, but its really killing me. Also, if anyone has any recommendations of a good Python book/tutorial, I would really appreciate it. Thank you! Here is my code:

def add_to_list(a): """Prints the list a and recursively adds items to the list a until it's either full or empty. """ a.append(1) add_to_list(a) def find_max(a): """Given the list a, prints the max element and returns the index of that value """ index = a.index(max(a)) print f988f36e3a
