That being said, we are excited to see what is next for Photoshop, which already meant that the major changes we will see will be a welcome change. Of course, features that were introduced with Photoshop CS5 and which were barely touched with version 10 – including newer versions of layers, masking, smart objects, and the Blend Modes – will be the target of our attention in the coming months. We hope that Photoshop creators find other ways to further blur the line between tools that can be used to create images and those that can be used to edit them.
